Bread for the Journey

In the Old Testament, it is the Passover that marks the beginning and the end of Israel's journey from slavery in Egypt to freedom in the Promised Land. In our own time, we can acclaim God in the words of Psalm 34 as we "taste and see the goodness of the Lord" because he continues to provide food for our own journey from slavery to the newness of life in Christ.

In the eucharistic prayer, we ask that God "be pleased to confirm in faith and charity [his] pilgrim Church on earth." The Eucharist marks the journey of the pilgrim church.

Our reception of the Eucharist expresses our communion with the Lord and with one another. It confirms our belief and celebrates the work of Christian unity alive in our hearts and in our world. Receiving the Eucharist is an act the witnesses to our communion with the body of Christ.

Our reception of the Eucharist also expresses our disunity, our need for God and our desire for communion with one another. As we receive the Body of Christ, we recognize that grace is required for deeper conversion and holiness. We mourn the ways that our community and our world are divided, and we pray for the strength to be instruments of peace and reconciliation.

Our reception of the Eucharist is an incredible act of humility by which we acknowledge our unworthiness ("Lord, I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof...") and the Lord's endless desire to bind us together in love ("...but only say the word and my soul shall be healed").

On our earthy pilgrimage, we find substance in the bread of life, which is itself a promise of our heavenly homeland. We become what we eat and take on the likeness of the One we consume. As we present ourselves to be transformed with the offerings of bread and wine, we see that all things are being made new in Christ.

Pan para el Camino

En el Antiguo Testamento, la Pascua marca el inicio y el final del camino de Israel desde la esclavitud en Egipto hasta la libertad en la Tierra Prometida. En nuestros tiempos, podemos aclamar a Dios con las palabras del Salmo 34 al "gustar y ver la bondad del Señor", porque él continúa proveyendo alimento para nuestro propio camino desde la esclavitud hasta la novedad de vida en Cristo.

En la plegaria eucarística, pedimos que Dios "se digne confirmar en la fe y la caridad a su Iglesia peregrina en la tierra". La Eucaristía marca el camino de la Iglesia peregrina. Recibir la Eucaristía expresa nuestra comunión con el Señor y entre nosotros. Confirma nuestra fe y celebra la obra de la unidad cristiana, viva en nuestros corazones y en nuestro mundo. Recibir la Eucaristía es un acto que da testimonio de nuestra comunión con el cuerpo de Cristo.

Recibir la Eucaristía también expresa nuestra desunión, nuestra necesidad de Dios y nuestro deseo de comunión entre nosotros. Al recibir el Cuerpo de Cristo, reconocemos que la gracia es necesaria para una conversión y santidad más profundas. Lamentamos las divisiones en nuestra comunidad y en nuestro mundo, y oramos por la fuerza para ser instrumentos de paz y reconciliación.

Recibir la Eucaristía es un acto de humildad excepcional mediante el cual reconocemos nuestra indignidad ("Señor, no soy digno de que entres bajo mi techo...") y el deseo inagotable del Señor de uniros en amor ("...pero solo di una palabra y sanaré").

En nuestra peregrinación terrenal, encontramos sustancia en el pan de vida, que es en sí mismo una promesa de nuestra patria celestial. Nos convertimos en lo que comemos y nos asemejamos a Aquel que consumimos. Al presentarnos para ser transformados con las ofrendas del pan y el vino, vemos que todo se renueva en Cristo.
